THREE WAY TRIAL SUCCESSFUL FOR WOMAN SUICIDE

Drinks Poison, Slashes Her Wrists And Jumps From Bridge To Highway

For several hours Friday afternoon of last week Mrs. Julia Malrieu, 55, 1109 Webster street, Oakland, wife of an Oakland hotel keeper, sat on the Southern Pacific bridge above the 101 Highway in Lawndale, meditating suicide. About 6 o'clock that same afternoon her body was discovered by L. Bocci, employed at a monument works nearby. Deputy Sheriff Krehl was notified. The woman had slashed her wrists and drank lysol before jumping from the bridge to the highway below.

The injured woman was removed to the Villa Sanatorium, where physicians found that, in addition to the effects of poison, she was suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries. Death resulted several hours later from an internal hemorrhage.

The remains were removed to the mortuary establishment of W. C. Lasswell & Co.

Deputy Coroner Mrs. L. D. Pepper, learned that the woman escaped from the French Hospital the same morning, she had been a patient there for some time past.

Funeral services were held from a San Francisco undertaking establishment this week.

An inquest is pending.

LOCAL VETERANS APPROVE SCHOOL IMPROVEMENTS

Believe Children And Adults Will Benefit By Gymnasium And Swimming Pool.

Old Glory Post No. 2044, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, have approved the necessary and needed changes at the Jefferson Union High School.

The members of organization interested as it is in boys life, girls environment, and heeding the teaching of Americanism, making better Americans, believe that with adequate gymnasium facilities, including the swimming pool, will enable the school officials to occupy the minds of children and keep them from the streets and places of undesirable associations.

In view of the fact that physical education is required by the State School Department and must be included in the curriculum, it is mandatory that the voters supply the necessary equipment to carry on this important phase of education.

Every member is urged to keep this in mind and go to the polls next Tuesday, March 10, and VOTE YES, on the JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT BONDS.

The cost—well, not much. Each taxpayer will be taxed only 6 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, so that if your home is assessed for $750 the annual taxes will be just 45 cents.

All can afford that, can't they? Exercise your birthright and vote YES.

FAMOUS CRITIC SEES GRAVE DANGER AHEAD

By J. W. MARCHBANK

Bill Corum, nationally known sports writer, says that for years he has been contending that a big resort is the only logical spot for mutuel betting over a protracted period. After surveying the situation in California he suggests either a shortening of long sessions or having a five-day race week. It is needless to say we have both a short meeting (25 days) and the five-day race week at Tanforan. This spring we get going tomorrow.

Corum asks this question:

"How long can it go on?"

By "it" is meant a long meeting with extremely heavy wagering.

I believe the keen observer is right when he says the problem is not the same at Hialeah Park and Tropical Park in Flordia as in this state. California gets its share of the tourist trade in winter and a certain proportion of the betting money comes from the tourists. As to where the home folk get the funds to wager the bulk of the millions going into the totalisator the New York journalist opines:

"Nobody has ever mentioned it, but there is little doubt income taxes are adding fuel to all forms of speculation sweeping from coast to coast, and has built tremendous proportions at Santa Anita.

"About the only money possible to escape taxation on is money won in betting. It also is possible to charge off betting losses if the proper procedure is observed. So the temptation is great to risk profits in a totalisator rather than hand them to Uncle Sam. It may come to the same thing in the end. But the 'tote' is more fun.

"In three days at Santa Anita we saw more movie stars cashing checks in the Turf Club than we had seen cashed in fifteen years of visiting race tracks from Rockingham to Tanforan."

Limiting race meetings to 25 days is one method of keeping the game within reasonable bounds and along with much-needed encouragement of breeding can maintain racing on an even keel.

ENTERTAIN GRAND PRESIDENT ON HER OFFICIAL VISIT

Native Daughters Fete Officers At Interesting Meeting Of El Carmelo Parlor.

El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, entertained Grand President Anna C. Thuesen when she paid her official visit here on Monday evening, February 24, in Colombo Auditorium, Colma. During the rendition of a very pretty song of greeting by Hattie Kelly, the grand president was conducted to her seat of honor by an escort team consisting of Lillian Crawford, Mary Callan, Louise Eliasen, Julia Romer, Lorraine Gregoire and Rosalyn Rosenberg.

The officers, under the leadership of President Eleanor McDonald, made a very pretty picture in their beautiful evening gowns and were highly commended for the manner in which they presented the ritualistic work.

Mesdames Dorothy Garibaldi, Dorothy Donofrio, Betty Mahar, Hildur Eggers and Ruth Cadigan were added to the roll of membership.

The following other grand officers, each of whom was presented with an ice box rose to which was attached a small bottle of perfume, were also in attendance: Grand Secretary Sallie R. Thaler, Grand Marshal Ethel Begley, Grand Trustees Orinda Giannini, Alice Lane and Alice Oldham, Grand Inside Sentinal Claire Lindsey, Past Grand President Mae Himes

LET US MARCH ON TO VICTORY NEXT TUESDAY

Turn Out And Be One Of The Winners At The Jefferson Union High School Bond Election.

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Why do we send our boys and girls to school? In other words, what is the purpose of education? The following quotation seems to furnish a correct answer to both questions. "The true purpose of education is to develop to their fullest extent, the capacities of every kind with which the God who made us has endowed us."

A mother and grandmother of today recalls the sacrifice made by her parents to send her to high school. In later years, when her daughter attended high school, this mother appreciated the fact that much progress had been made in education since her girlhood days. She noted that there were more courses of study in the curriculum, among which was a business course including shorthand and typing. With every course a certain amount of gymnasium work was required. Tennis was this young lady's favorite sport and she became one of the best players in her school. In spite of her fear of the water, with the exercise of perserverance, together with instruction at the pool she learned to swim well enough so that she ceased to be afraid of the briny deep and enjoyed the sport. PRESIDENT'S EPOCHAL MESSAGE MAKES HIS ELECTION CERTAIN

Much Needed Revision Of Taxation Suggested By "Chief" Enthusiastically Welcomed By People.

(By J. W. Marchbank)

At exactly the psychological moment President Roosevelt has come forward with a comprehensive proposal revising the tax structure of the country. As I had a notion for a long time the chief executive possessed sufficient vision to straighten out the heritage of muddled conditions left by previous administrations I was not at all surprised by the President's message to Congress Tuesday of this week.

For several months I have been saying as forcefully as possible just this:

"Give President Roosevelt four more years in the White House to finish his great job."

The events of the last few days show I have been on the right track. In order to put the national government on the firmest of foundations he has been engaged for three years in the necessary cleaning-up process that precedes all construction of a permanent nature. It would be the height of folly to toss him out of his job when he is only starting on construction itself. All he has done so far has been preparatory. He needs four years more to complete his grand work.

"Roosevelt Throws Tax Revision Bombshells" is the screamer on the President's message in one of the county papers.

It was a bombshell all right and a well-aimed one at the forces—what the "chief" himself has called "entrenched greed"— that have been holding progress back for many years. It was a bombshell at the few and in favor of the millions sometimes called the "common people."

The President is unalterably on the side of the average man.

Close students of the coming national election declare President Roosevelt's chance for a sweeping victory have been increased many fold by his courageous stand for fair play in that most vital of all subjects, taxation.

As our readers know, the President suggested a graduated tax on undistributed corporate net profits, which the treasury department estimates would raise about $1,500,000,000 annually in revenue.

PEOPLE TO DECIDE CONTROL OF NEXT COUNTY FLORAL FIESTA

Supervisor Witt Battles For Transfer Of Authority To Commission In Order To Get State Funds.

Supervisor Al Witt, Daly City, began a fight last Monday at a meeting of the Board for placing control of the San Mateo County Floral Fiesta under a county commission in order to avoid loss of state fair money.

Witt declared that the livestock pavilion in Visitacion Valley may be allotted all state money in the future if the present floral fiesta committee is allowed to continue in charge of the fete, and upon his motion the question of control was continued for two weeks.

The Board, by a vote of 3 to 2, rejected a proposal that members of the San Mateo County Products and Floral Fiesta directorate be called in March 16, to discuss the 1936 exhibit.

Supervisors Fred Beer and John Poole voted "yes."

Witt, in denying that he was interested in gaining control of the fiesta for political purposes, said that his opposition was based upon the feeling that the invitation to the directorate was premature, and also that when the call is extended it should include all taxpayers.

Witt criticized the mailing out of postcards to "a certain select few" to arrange the fiesta, saying none among his constituents had received any.

The cards, it was revealed, were mailed out by George J. Davis, outgoing president of the fiesta, and included "all interested persons."

Tuesday evening the fiesta committee, which incorporated to conduct the show last year, met to elect an executive committee and a chairman. Davis was re-nominated as chairman of the fiesta, but refused to accept the nomination, claiming that private business demanded his entire time. Then he was nominated as a member of the executive committee, and again refused for the same reason. He offered, however, to do anything he could to further the fiesta.

There was nothing in Davis' remarks Tuesday night to indicate any opposition to supervisorial control,

CITIZENS SUPPORT JEFFERSON GYMNASIUM AT MASS MEETING

Vote "YES" Next Tuesday At The Nearest Schoolhouse—See List Of Voting Places In This Issue.

To the accompaniment of music and cheers by the students, a fine representation of leading citizens listened Tuesday evening of this week to statements of the needs and plans for a gymnasium at the Jefferson Union High School. On hearing that the tax required for this wonderful improvement will average less than fifty cents per year per family, every one went away eager to urge the electorate to bring a first class gymnasium to our city and high school district. What family cannot afford to give the price of one picture show, or a few cigars, or a swim at Sutro's in order to give our community an up-to-date center for physical recreation, and our children the best facilities for maintaining good health. Many realized, as they had not realized before, that a failure to approve this gymnasium at this time will mean throwing away the chance to receive the gift of a swimming pool from the federal government.

Promptly at eight o'clock, after preliminary band music by students under the leadership of Mr. Thomas Stevens, Dr. F. P. Callsen, president of the Board of Trustees, pointed to the rapid growth of Daly City and of the high school since it opened in 1923 with 12 students, 'til now, when 640 are enrolled. The federal government had been approached during the last year, he continued, to provide PWA funds for a $136,000 physical education plant and additional rooms for the school. All plans have been approved by authorities of the PWA in California, but before the grant of money can be finally secured from Washington our local district must guarantee its quota of $85,000; hence the election at this time. He went on to show that the passage of the Riley-Stewart Act had prevented the school trustees from keeping any moneys saved out of running expenses for use in construction of buildings in a following year. Before this act went into effect, the district had saved enough in this manner to construct the six room addition and a pumping plant adequate for any swimming pool that might be constructed here. In 1933-34 these savings were sufficient to run the school without any local tax whatever, although a neigh-

EASTERN OWNER SENDS FAMOUS HORSE TO WEST

H. C. Hatch, who has his stallion Sweepster standing at J. W. Marchbank's Heather Farm, has announced the service fee for outside mares will be one hundred dollars this season. Sweepster was recently shipped to this state from the Blue Grass section of Kentucky. His owner ordered the change of residence for the well known stock horse, as he is anxious to take part in the breeding expansion predicted for California.

Sweepster was a winner of stakes and in the last few years has been sending such stakes winners as Sweepstaff and Sweepouch to the races. He is a son of the great sire Sweep, one of the most successful of American progenitors.

Sweepstre's owner decided on allowing other than his own mares to be sent to the court of his stallion after making a survey of the breeding possibilities for the right blood out this way. California, several decades ago, was noted the world over for its outstanding thoroughbreds and Hatch appears to be mpressed by the probability of the return of that fame.

RECORD OF LOW MAINTENANCE FOR JEFFERSON HIGH

Expenditure Per Pupil Is Second To Last On List In State

According to the tabulated comparative reports of the Division of Research of the State Department, Jefferson Union High School District has a record for one of the lowest maintenance costs in the state of California. It has also the lowest cost for maintenance of any of the four high schools in San Mateo County.

The last tabulated state report (1931) showed that the current expenditures per pupil in average daily attendance in the Jefferson Union High School amounted to $161.38, being the second lowest of the entire group of schools reported by the department. In the same group the costs ran up to $289.63, or $128.25 per pupil more than the costs in our school.

In the total district expenditures per pupil in average daily attendance the comparison is even more favorable. Jefferson's costs were $183.58, whereas the costs in the other districts ran up as high as $404.88, or $221.30 more than here.

In the last tabulated comparative report (1933) from the office of the County Superintendent of Schools for San Mateo County, embracing all of the four year high schools in the county, it was shown that the current expenditures per pupil in average daily attendance in the high schools ranged all the way from $148.14 up to $331.56, the lowest being that of Jefferson High. The school next to ours was $26.36 higher.

During these same years, out of the money appropriated for school expenses, the Jefferson High School trustees saved enough money to build with local labor six additional class rooms and in addition carried over a balance sufficient to pay the district's share of the costs of operation of the school. Thus for the year 1933-34, while the taxpayers of a neighboring high school district paid 75 cents on each $100 valuation of their property for the maintenance of their high school, the taxpayers of Jefferson Union High School District paid nothing.

Nor was this done at the expense of educational efficiency. Our high school graduates are eligible to enter the State University on the same footing as graduates from any other accredited high school in California.

In addition, the school grounds have been improved to the extent of thousands of dollars, until now the buildings and lawns of the Jefferson Union High School are a beauty spot in the district.

Here is a record of which the entire district may well be proud. And it is a record which justifies the residents of the high school district in voting at this time for the bonds for the construction of additional rooms and a gymnasium, in the fullest confidence that every penny of the public funds thus provided will be spent with scrupulous care and solely in the interests of the Jefferson Union High School District.

PEOPLE TO HAVE FIESTA CONTROL

nor was there any such sentiment expressed by any member of last year's fiesta committee, members of which, with the exception of Davis, were elected to serve this year.

Augmenting the fiesta committee's failure to register any protest against supervisorial control, was a letter to County Executive Walter T. Kellogg from Fred W. Links, deputy chief, division of budgets and accounts, State Department of Finance, confirming statements made Monday to the supervisors by Supervisor Albert J. Witt Jr., Daly City. Monday Witt warned the supervisors the fiesta could expect no state nor county aid unless it had official standing, and if it did not have all state aid it might be entitled to would go to the live-stock show.

Bearing Witt out almost to the word, Links' letter Kellogg says in part:

"The state constitution provides specifically that the legislature shall have no power to "make any gift or authorize the making of any gift of public money or thing of value to any individual, municipality or corporation whatever."

If the supervisors name a county fair commission to continue the fiesta, and there is no doubt that they will, the corporation formed last year will go out of existence.

In order that an investgation may be made of the company awarded the contract a motion was carried to postpone action on all bids for one week.

Mayor Smth recommended that George Hopman be appointed as a member of the Daly City police force. The reason for recommendation was stated to be that policing protection around the Daly City Theater and school children's street crossings was not sufficient.

The appointment was made. Councilmen Selmi and Fahey voting in the negative.

According to recommendations made by the Fire Department, William G. Nassano and Richard J. Ennis were appointed to Station No. 5.

A petition bearing thirty-eight names requested the council not to grant a permit for the operation of a wrecking business at 16 Mission circle. Citizens debated the issue as being a fire hazard. No definite action was taken.

ents want our children to have the very best educational training we can afford to give them. We are in favor of the proper buildings and equipment so that their schooling may be as complete as the age we are living in will permit.

When Mary and John grow up they will look back over the years with gratitude and pride in reviewing the Jefferson Union High School bond election of March 10 1936, and how Mother and Dad did their bit in putting it over. We parents give and give until sometimes it hurts, but we love it because it is done in the interest of our children. They in turn will carry on in our places some day, sacrificing as we have done and on through the years. So in our march with progress, let's leave no gaps In the ranks for someone after us to fill. Poor Richard once said, "Never put off until tomorrow what you can do today."

Today, NOW, let's all mark the tenth day of this month, next Tuesday, in such a way that we will be sure to remember to cast our vote. Single votes are like pennies. Just one penny doesn't count for much, it's the individual pennies that build up the dollars, and so each vote builds up a total count that spells defeat or victory. We Fathers and Mothers are all good soldiers, for we have never failed to do our duty. As such we see ahead only VICTORY.

At Forty Cornaro Learned Gentle Art of Growing Old

History's outstanding example of the value of hygienic living is Luigi Cornaro, whose serious sickness when he was forty years of age directed his attention to regulating his habits of life. Instead of dying before fifty, as a result of what was considered starvation diet, he lived to be one hundred.

In his eighty-fourth year he wrote his celebrated book showing how he had achieved health, high spirits and an unfailing interest in the life of his age.

There to Use

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

Why do people come home from a hospital with bowels working like a well-regulated watch?

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

He made the plane in short order and got the dead policeman to the cabin by way of the wing. Leaping off, he rushed back at top speed to meet Lilith. He had to go all the way to where he had left her.

She had slung the showshoes on her back, floundered through the first drift, and collapsed. When he came up, she was rubbing snow on her bared ankle. She looked up at him, white-faced with pain and despair.

"I tried, Alan. I can't even walk," she said. "Go back. It's all my fault. Hurry and save yourself. Maybe I can—delay him."

For reply, Garth swung her up across his shoulders and headed again for the plane. There still might be time. He put all his strength into another burst of speed.

They came to the glacier stream, with no sight or sound of the pursuers behind them. Garth lifted the girl from his shoulder and set her on the front edge of the monoplane wing. He grasped hold to vault up beside her.

A bullet fanned the girl's pain-whitened cheek. Another bullet struck the wing edge between her and Garth. He jerked her down off the wing. The firing ceased. But the angle of the shot in the wing edge told Garth the direction from which it had come.

After murdering Constable Dillon but before starting to trail Garth, Huxby must have sent one of his men running along the foot of the tundra slope to take possession of the planes. Garth had outrun the miner. But the man had come within easy rifle range and clear view of the plane—at least of its upper parts.

Garth did not hesitate a spit second. He carried Lilith to the mooring tree and slashed the line with his knife. Then, taking the girl pickaback, he set off up the stream bank.

His one backward glance showed him that the plane was drifting out into the lake. But, the cross-wind had died down. The lessened stream current could be counted upon to carry the plane out beyond reach before it was stopped by the skim ice.

The rifleman up on the edge of the tundra was off to the right of the stream. Garth knew he had a thick screen of spruce trees and scrub all the way to timberline. As he climbed, the man above began to yell and halloo. Garth had no doubt that the fellow was shouting about the outdrift of the cabin plane.

Before long, other yells came from the lake shore. They were followed by rifle shots. It was easy to guess that one or more of the pursuers had sighted the plane and opened fire, on the supposition that Garth was hidden in the cockpit. The shouts of the man above told that he was running downhill, probably to let the others know he had kept the fugitives from getting aboard.

Garth moderated his rush. Even so, his steady uphill slogging brought him near timberline before the four men got together down at the lake shore. From the sudden stoppage of the firing, he knew the fourth man had explained the situation. Yet he did not quicken his climbing pace.

For the first time since leaving the plane, he spoke to Lilith: "Try holding out farther from my neck, Miss Ramill. We're safe enough now. We're climbing faster than they can wade the drifts."

With less than a hundred paces, Garth saw a whitish pall surge out from the down-rolling clouds on the western mountain side. A snow-spitting wind-gust whooshed aslant the tundra slope. He turned sharp to the left and headed uphill towards the foot of the glacier. Before he had covered another hundred paces, the air was thick with snow.

Fortunately for Lilith, the storm was only an early autumn blizzard, not a 30 or 40 below zero gale of the subarctic winter. The rabbit-fur undersuit inside the buckskins saved her. Though greatly chilled, she was only slightly frostbitten when Garth reached the brink of the lateral moraine, a little below the foot of the glacier.

He went out across the rock-strewn gulch bed. Within a few moments Lilith suddenly found herself out of the wind and snow and the white gloom of the storm. She could not see. Her elbow rasped along a smooth wall. Then she was placed upon a ledge.

A match flared in Garth's upraised hand. The light glinted and sparkled on ice walls. She was in the mouth of the cave, up inside the glacier-stream tunnel. The rock floor was heaped with the caribou meat. At the side of the entrance lay the pothole stone that Garth had made into an Eskimo lamp.

He pointed to an outspread caribou skin. "Crawl in on that. Then rub your face and pound yourself."

She scrambled to the skin mat, her teeth clenched on her lip to keep from crying out from the pain of her ankle. Garth had struck another match and held it to the moss wick of the stone lamp. A third match was necessary before enough of the frozen fat was thawed and melted to feed the wick. But, once started, the flame heated more and more of the fat.

Lilith had already rubbed her frost-whitened cheeks and nose into a glow. He laid his belt-ax on a hind-quarter of caribou, and smiled at her in the growing light of the wick.

"Chop off a shank or two. We'll need bone spits," he said. "But first warm some of the other skins and wrap them around you. Also put more fat in the lamp. I'l be gone two or three hours."

Over near the far end of the glacier front, he found a drift with a four-inch crust packed by the drive of the wind during the previous snowstorm. He went at it like an Eskimo, slashing out big domino-shaped blocks with his knife.

After he had gathered a high pile of the blocks on a fairly level spot just beyond the drift, he started to cut others and lay them edgewise in a circular wall around the pile. Two feet up he began to lean the blocks inward.

By the end of three hours, he stood in the blackness of a snow beehive, half a foot higher than his head and over seven feet across at the floor level.

For the First Time Since Leaving the Plane, He Spoke to Lilith.

Low down in the wall he cut a hole. There was little more than space enough between the igloo and the glacier front for him to crawl out. He circled around the snow dome and the big drift, through the thick swirl of snow, and recrossed the stream.

In the cave he found Lilith fur-bundled and hovering over the lamp, as she broiled thawed caribou steaks on a shank-bone spit. He picked the girl up in her skin wrappings, and carried her out and around to the igloo. A second trip fetched the rest of the skins, the lamp, and enough meat for a starter.

While she went on with her cooking, over the re-lighted lamp, he cut more blocks and built a low entrance tunnel from the door to part way around the curve of the igloo wall. When he backed in, he blocked the mouth of the tunnel with a snow slab.

The inside of the igloo was already so warm from the lamp heat that the inside of the dome roof was beginning to soften. But Garth knew there was no slightest danger of it falling in. As fast as the snow melted, the moisture was sucked outwards. It met the cold of the outside air and froze hard.

In a little while the igloo would be a dome of solid ice strong enough to hold the weight of a bear. The interior was both warmer and drier than any tent, or any hut of wood or stone. The caribou skins made even the snow floor comfortable.

The girl had a stack of caribou steaks broiled for him. He sat down, without a word, and began to eat. In the midst of the meal the smoke and heat became so stifling that he had to cut a two-inch ventilation hole in the roof.

All the time he gave no sign that he perceived the look of misery in Lilith's eyes. But when he had eaten his fill, he spoke a sudden order: "Bare your foot."

She obeyed, tensely silent. He looked close at the swollen ankle in the lamplight and felt it with his finger tips. Easy as was his touch, Lilith gasped with pain. But he smiled his relief.

"No broken bone or dislocation; only a sprain. You'll soon be all right. Start packing it with softened snow. Keep it as cold as you can without freezing."

At that, all her pent-up emotion burst out: "Oh, how you must despise me! Get you into this frightful danger—then go lame! A helpless, useless drag on you! That beastly coward—he'll hunt you out . . . murder you like the poor policeman. And all my fault!"

Garth shook his head. "You take too much of the credit, Miss Ramill. So far as regards Constable Dillon, the result would have been the same if you had stayed at Fort Simpson."

"But—but you can't get away!"

Garth's smile hardened. "Neither can they. Now tend to your ankle. I'm going for meat."

He dressed and crawled out into the storm. When at last he came back in, he had brought nearly half of the caribou meat from the ice cave and stacked it around the igloo. He had also set up blocks of snow-crust to shape a drift of new snow in a certain way.

He unrolled the thawed wolverine pelt and showed a big hank of catgut. With his knife he started to shape caribou skins for parkas and trousers. Lilith's eyes brightened. She softened a length of catgut in the melted lamp-fat, and asked for a needle.

All the remainder of that day of death and storm, both of them plied awl and buckskin needle and catgut thread. Neither was an Eskimo seamstress. But their stitches, though coarse, were strong. By nightfall they finished the first caribou-skin suit—waistlong sock-leggings, and parka with hood-front fringed with wolverine fur.

After another meal of broiled meat, Garth went out and climbed the lateral moraine to gather a quantity of caribou moss from between the snow-drifts on the wind-swept tundra.

When he returned, Lilith lay asleep on one of the uncut skins. She had sunk down, completely tired out. Garth covered her over, blocked the roof hole with a chunk of soft snow, and spread his own skin mat on the other side of the lamp from the girl. He lay down on it and snuffed out the light.

CHAPTER X

The Bedeviling.

Lilith opened her eyes as Garth finished his hasty meal of lamp-seared meat and fat. He explained about the plane. Her hands clutched together till they whitened.

"You—you'll be careful?"

"Never fear. I'll come back to look out for you. The storm has blown out. Clear sky, and about 10 below zero. Keep treating your ankle, and work on your suit."

"But—how long?—"

He handed her the knife, but took the belt-ax. "If I'm not back soon, it will not be till late afternoon or after dark. They may turn out early, like myself, to have a look at their plane. In that case, I'll have to hide-out all day."

"You'll freeze!"

That won a smile from him. "This is an Eskimo rig. I've sat in one for hours beside a seal hole, at 40 below zero. Finish your own suit, and crawl out to enjoy the frost. Only, be careful of that ankle. When outside, keep close to the igloo, and duck inside if you see anyone else than myself."

She flung out her hands. "Oh, if only I could go along to help! I'm so afraid he'll find you. All those guns—he and his men—you, empty-handed!"

Garth met the almost frantic outburst with a look of cool irony. "Do you take me for a chechahco? Mark this—that scoundrel Huxby is the man who's in danger."

With the assurance, Garth crept out through the tunnel, shoving his snowshoes ahead of him. Snow had continued to fall after the wind had died down. That meant easy tracking. In the dim starlight, he had to guess at the covering of his trail to the stream channel.

During the night, the last dwindling flow had choked the channel with anchor ice, had flooded over the snow, and frozen solid. Garth took off his snowshoes and crept across the glare ice without leaving any marks.

On the other bank, he plowed a heavy trail up into the ice tunnel, and brought from the storage cave one of the remaining legs of caribou. He left the meat atop the moraine, and started down the tundra as fast as he could travel by starlight.

Dawn was graying over the east mountain wall of the valley when he neared the lake. He crossed over the frozen ford and went to peer at the three-seater plane in the growing twilight. It stood much higher than he had left it.

A close view showed that the engineer and his men had managed to raise the craft above water by cribbing logs under the shattered pontoons. The top logs of the crib brought the bottom of the floats level with the thickening skim ice. Long poles had been set to brace the wings against the wind gusts.

Garth swung aboard. As he expected, all the food had been taken away. So also had been the breaker points from the magneto. Huxby no doubt had figured that the canoe builder might repair the floats with rawhide, and run away with the three-seater. To balk the engineer, in turn, Garth helped himself to the breaker cam.

He jumped back on the bank, and mushed eastwards along the shore in the dim grayness. At first, thickets of alders and willows cut off all view of the lake. He did not trouble to seek an opening until he had covered a half mile. There he came to a remembered stretch of partly open bank.

Though the gray dawn had grown a little less faint, he peered for several moments without sighting the cabin plane. It seemed as if its pontoons must have been sawed through by the sharp-edged sheet of ice, so that the aircraft had foundered in deep water.

But then he made out vaguely a white shape against the white of the snow-covered ice. A short dash brought him close to the grounded plane. It lay in shallow water, surrounded by freezing slush. The blizzard had hit the lake hard enough to break up the sheet ice and crack it into pieces too small to grind through the sides of the pontoons.

The plane had been driven across into this corner of the lake, along with the sludge. The shoreward-swung tail was only a biscuit toss out from the solid bank. Garth hastened to fetch small trunks and pieces of rotted logs from the down timber under the nearest trees. By tossing out chunks of log on the snow-covered sludge and bog, he was able to make a slender footbridge with pairs of trunks.

The last extension proved touch and go. Cross pieces and stringers drove down under his weight into the sludge-filled water and the mud beneath. But he had made a dash of it. His hands clutched hold of the rudder before he could sink.

He climbed upon the tail, ran forward to the cabin, and swung inboard. The frozen body of Constable Dillon lay on the floor where he had placed it. He buckled the cartridge belt with its holstered pistol about his own waist, took the keys and handcuffs from Dillon's pocket, and climbed out to scramble forward into the cockpit.

The side of the cockpit had been pierced by several bullets. But when Huxby fired at the drifting plane, in his attempt to kill the supposed hidden fugitives, he had aimed with great care to avoid damage to the instruments and controls and the motor.

After removing the breaker points from the magneto, Garth ran back to the tail of the plane. Here came the greatest of his risks. The bridge poles had risen to the surface again, but the outermost cross logs remained embedded in the mud under the water.

He let himself down sideways. As his moccasins touched the slender trunks, he let go of the rudder and leaped. Though the ends of the poles shot downwards, his swift dash carried him up their sharp slant to the next pair of trunks.

The rest of the improvised bridge was fairly firm. A single misstep anywhere along it would have landed him in deep bog; but he had done far too much canoeing and rough-ground running to lack balance or sure-footedness.

Safe back on solid ground, he at once stepped into his snowshoes and headed straight away from the shore into a dense growth of spruce. There he circled to the right towards the glacier gulch, keeping well back from the lake.

"Mountain of Hellfire" Emits Ammoniacal Gases

Over a great area on the frontier between Baluchistan and Persia everything is dead. Not a bird, beast, or reptile, not even an insect, survives. They have been gassed by the "Mountain of Hellfire"—as the Persians call the volcano of Koh-i-Tafatan. The crater pours out dense clouds of ammoniacal gas which destroy every living thing and even burn up all plant life, says Tit-Bits Magazine.

This is the only mountain which produces this particular gas, but not the only one which exudes poison gas. In 1912 the volcano of Katmai in Alaska exploded, producing the biggest crater in the world, which is now known as the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes. Here sulphurous gas streams out from rifts, and it is death to approach one of these deadly vents.

The Sakura Shima volcano in Japan blew up in 1914 and overwhelmed the city of Kagoshima. The loss of life was over 70,000, and a great number of these people were suffocated by pestilent gases which rushed up from earthquake fissures a long way from the mountain itself.

Before the great Chilean earthquake of 1857 poison gas rose in the floor of the Bay of Payta and killed enormous quantities of fish and crabs. They floated on the surface and were washed up on the beach, forming a wall-like line three to four feet high and twelve miles long.

The most ghastly disaster of recent times was the destruction of the beautiful city of St. Pierre by a cloud of gas and dust flung out by Mont Pelee. Within a matter of moments 40,000 people were blotted out.

Dockside Slanguage

"Luters," scurfes," and "toshers" are among the quaint nicknames given to the workers in London's dockland. A "luter" is a man who clears mud from the beds of barges, a "scurfer" is one who scrapes away the crust from the insides of ships' boilers, and a "tosher" is a waterman who searches for stray bits of floating timber or dredges for a wet haul of coal. A coal boat that ducks her funnel when she passes beneath the bridges is known as a "flat-iron," a vessel belonging to the Steam Navigation company is called a "Navvy," and the river police are humorously dubbed "Lord Trenchard's Navy."—Tit-Bits Magazine.

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

WIN SUPPORT OF GYMNASIUM AT CITIZENS MEET

boring high school district was raising a tax of 75 cents on each hundred dollars of assessed valuation solely for running expenses. The bond rate for the Jefferson Union High School District is now only 11 cents on the hundred dollars of assessed valuation as compared with 23 cents in a neighboring district. Besides this tax in the Jefferson Union High School District is decreasing each year and will be paid eventually in nine years. Dr. Callsen urged taxpayers to realize that many of the items on their tax bills under the name of Jefferson are for the Jefferson Grammar School District only, and not for the Jefferson Union High School District at all.

Miss Alice Fitzpatrick, president of the student body, was then introduced. She pleaded for a continuation of the progressive policy which has been followed by the school district in providing a first class school. She especially urged parents and grandparents to realize that standards of education nowadays call for thorough training in good health habits and in the many sports which are now popular.

Desperate overcrowding in the shower and locker rooms was reported by the directors of physical education, Mr. Albert Biggs and Miss Jaunita Young. Frequent rains and other weather conditions were cited as obstacles to carrying out the program for health education recommended by the state. In this connection it may be remembered that physical education was introduced into the high schools of this country when it was discovered that many men examined for the army when the United States entered the world war were found to be physically unfit for duty. Coach Biggs further called attention to the fact that Jefferson is the only high school in San Mateo County which does not have a gymnasium. Miss Young stressed the need for a proper restroom for girl students who are just returning to school after illness, or who are suddenly taken sick during school hours.

Mrs. Stella Jensen, secretary of the Board of Trustees, met the challenge of Miss Fitzpatrick by declaring that she for one, as a member of this generation of parents in this community, believed in making things as much better for our children as possible. She entirely disagreed with the type of person who thinks that what was good enough for his parents or grandparents should be good enough for himself and his children and grandchildren. She appealed to all citizens of the district to keep faith with the next generation and place Jefferson on a par with the rest of the county and the state.

School cheers and the school song, led by Richard Millet and Aldo Albigeri, provided an interlude at this point, after which Dr. Callsen introduced the principal speaker of the evening, Mr. W. A. Orion, chief of the Division of Health and Physical Education of the California State Department of Education.

Mr. Orion recalled how much open fields, pets and horses, vacant lots had menat to him as a boy, and he regretted that many city children are denied these joys. He made plain, however, that modern children have just as much steam to blow off and just as much need to learn good sportsmanship as ever. He believes it to be a fine thing that the ancient Greek ideal of physical culture is so rapidly displacing the medieval notion that strenuous bodily activity should be indulged in only by pagans. The trend in the last century toward labor saving machines, and toward longer hours of schooling indoors, seated in class rooms, makes it imperative that physical exercise become a habit and a pleasure, for the good of the individual and for the good of the nation. He claimed that people still loved physical games and competitions, and that places for them were about all that is needed to get people into sports. It is most important, he said, that all students have suitable physical education instruction, and interschool competition should not be permitted to take up all the time and resource of the school and its teachers. He went on to state that city homes are failing as play centers for children. Although churches are gradually seeing the need for taking care of the social and physical needs of youth, the schools are the logical centers for popular physical recreation.

In Mr. Orion's opinion the new gymnasium for Jefferson Union High School will be the most widely used building in the city, since it will be occupied all day by the children, and all evening by the young men and women and those older adults who wish to use it. In this connection it is well to remember that it costs about $30,000 to the public for each of the thousands of prisoners and criminals sent to jail each year, whereas the cost per year for keeping a child in school averages less than one-half of one per cent of that amount. In the past, young men and women have been so eager to use a gymnasium that they have gone miles to other districts to do so. To the taxpayers the cost of building it will be less than 7 cents per student per year.

At this point the audience was treated to another short program, consisting of a song and recitation by the student chorus. The recitation, "With Apologies to The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe," follows:

Students: There was a high school, whose rooms were so few; it had so many students it didn't know what to do.

Voice of the Citizens: WHAT CAN WE DO ABOUT IT?

Students: Please vote for the Gym and give us more room.

After this, Mr. James Ferguson, principal of the school, thanked Mr. Orion for making the trip from Sacramento, especially to help the Jefferson Union High School District to obtain a gymnasium. He then invited every voter present to consider himself a member of the board of trustees, while he reviewed the points and facts presented during the evening, emphasizing the rapid growth of the school to date and to be expected, the necessity of raising money by bonds which would have been raised gradually out of savings, except for the Riley-Stewart Law, and which must be assured now or else the chance of receiving help from the federal government will be lost. He spoke of the need for space in the present main building, especially for an adequate cafeteria and lunch room, which would be made possible by a new gymnasium. He also dwelt with effect on the need to teach all young people how to swim, so that drownings may be stopped, citing the case of a student who was drowned within the last few years because he had not had an opportunity to learn to swim. The expectation of enough federal aid to build a swimming pool has been clearly established by the state authorities and congressmen from this district. At the same time the bonds to be voted on next Tuesday will be sufficient to provide the needed gymnasium and class rooms, even if federal aid is not forthcoming.

Dr. Callsen then read a letter from the officers of the Daly City Fire Department putting that organization on record solidly behind the gymnasium, along with the veterans organizations, parent-teacher associations and many other groups. The remaining members of the board of trustees were then introduced together with W. E. Pitschke, editor and publisher of the Daly City Record, who spoke briefly, supporting the gymnasium movement and giving much credit to Mrs. Pitschke for articles appearing in the paper.

Dr. Callsen finally made clear that all persons who voted last year are now eligible to vote on this school election, as well as all new voters who registered prior to January 30, or forty days before the election called for next Tuesday, March 10.

The polls will be open from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m. at the following Elementary school houses: Crocker, Woodrow Wilson, Jefferson (Colma), Rockaway Beach, San Pedro (Sharp Park), Bayshore, and at the Social Club Hall on Alvarado street in Brisbane.

All voters are urged to support this proposition so that Jefferson Union High School will have a first class gymnasium for its students and the residents of the district.

NEW MASONIC HALL BUILDING UNDER WAY

The new Masonic building being erected by Crocker Lodge on the corner of Mission street and Hillcrest drive is now well under way and on completion will be a structure not only the Masonic Order will be proud of, but also all residents of Daly City.

The building is to be a steel frame reinforced concrete building with a 45 foot frontage on Mission street and 75 feet on Hillcrest drive.

The lower floor will have two stores facing Mission street and three stores on Hillcrest drive. A large banquet hall will occupy a space in the rear of the stores.

On the second floor there will be two lodge rooms for meeting purposes, the entrance to these will be at the rear of the building on Hillcrest drive. The remainder of this floor can be arranged for four offices having their entrance on Mission street.

A colored picture of the Masonic Hall is being displayed on the wall of the Bank of America in Daly City.

THE PUBLIC VOICE

Opinions Of Citizens For Which The Editor Gives No Sponsorship

The Editor:

President Roosevelt said in a recent radio speech, we must stick together and keep the few from ganging up on us. And that is precisely what the taxpayers of Daly City are driving at. They don't intend to be taxed beyond endurance by four men, (with one mind to the four) whose chief object seems to be to handle a jack pot at the taxpayers expense.

Formerly taxes were levied with the object of paying all the expenses of the current year, but the expenses grew so fast it was found necessary to issue bonds and spread the payment over a number of years. There are federal, state, county, and city governments, all dipping into the pockets of the taxpayers—taxes seen and known about, takes unseen and undreamed of. Of the adult population of the country one employable person in five is on the public payroll and eats the taxes; one in five of them is unemployed and another one in five is working—doing double duty for half pay. Of the two-fifths left one-fifth owns the country and the other fifth is the leisure class (What Mr. Morgan claims is the cause of civilization, but who are nearing the breadline under such diection as his own).

Under circumstances such as these it is astounding to find a policeman with a job second to none, and far better than the average, ask a taxpayer: "Won't you give the police a break. This has occurred many times in Daly City during the attempt of the city officials to stop the Civil Service referendum. These people, not content with a lifetime job at what these depression times are splendid wages, and from which they cannot be removed without a case of dynamite, want the taxpayers to provide for them and their's eternally. Did it ever occur to them, that it would be a patriotic and splendid thing for them to give the taxpayers a break. They could do this by accepting wages more in tune with what other workmen get in such depression times as these. If the employes of the city are not more than satisfied let them vacate their jobs and it is a very safe bet that every job can be filled ten times for half the pay they get without any loss of efficiency.

What cities the size of Daly City need is officers who will spend the public money as they do their own—with the thought in mind that when they have busted the taxpayers they will have to do their own chores (without a nurse).

TOLERANCE IS MAIN PROP OF PROGRESS

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

In an extremely interesting editorial the Vancouver Sun trenchantly points out there is always danger in oppression and suppression and always safety in good-natured endurance of the opinions of others. The occasion for the write-up was the recent action of the government of France in outlawing royalist societies and monarchist organizations. As a direct result there were riots in Paris.

In contrast to the French treatment is that of the English toward the group known as the Jacobites. The Jacobites hold that the present Royal Family is a usurper. They claim the proper man to occupy the throne is Albert Luitpold Ferdinand Michael Rupprecht, former crown prince of Bavaria and direct descendant of Charles First, who was beheaded.

Each year the Jacobites gather in large numbers in Trafalgar Square and solemnly pronounce Albert Luitpold as king of England. Far from interferring with the ceremony, the King usually sends a company of trumpeters of the Royal Foot Guards to blow a fanfare for the protesting Jacobites. That's a lot better than taking the thing seriously and perhaps stirring up much trouble.

Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant and economist, is working hard for the success of a League of Cooperative Department Stores on a nation-wide scale. In the movement the well known business man apparently has an idea that will do much to restore prosperity in the country. He has pointed out, at the outset, that the co-operatives will not be a blow to retail trade.

Filene has furnished $1,000,000 as capital for the Consumer-Distribution Corporation, which will be the purchasing agency and the directional head of stores to be located in large cities in various sections.

He declares that far from hurting retail trade the whole project is designed to stimulate business in every line, and no line will be helped more by the movement than the business of retailing.

He says:

"All our industrial advances have been due to the substitution of better methods of production and the compulsion resting upon competitors to install these better methods."

Under the Filene plan, profits from the co-operatives above nominal interest in capital will be returned to patrons, called "co-operators."

Explanation is made the stores could not be referred to as a "chain," as each will be owned and operated locally and not handled by any central organization.

A report from Russia says that a gold nugget, weighing more than 443 ounces and worth approximately $15,514, was found recently. It was discovered in the Sysertski field in the Ural Mountains by a brigade leader of prospectors, who at slight depth from surface found a layer of gold-bearing sand.

According to Moscow newspapers, the prospector's spade struck a hard substance and eventually he dug out the nugget, revealed to wondering eyes when it had been washed. It is 15 inches in length, 2.7 in width, and 1.5 in thickness.

According to experts the world's largest nugget, so far as known, was the Sarah Sands nugget, found at Ballarat, Australia, in 1859, weight 2,688 ounces, worth $53,760 at the price of gold at that time. Quite a number of others weighing more than the Russian nugget have been found in Australia. Some have also been found in this state topping the Russian mass.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Thou has dealt well with thy servant, O Lord, according unto thy word. Thy hands have made me and fashioned me." These words from Psalms comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, March 8, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Man." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "But as it is written, Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. . . . For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him?" (I Cor. 2: 9, 11 to?).

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mark Baker Eddy, will also be included: "God is the Principle of man, and man is the idea of God. . . . . Man is the family name for all ideas, —the sons and daughters of God. All that God imparts moves in accord with Him, reflecting goodness and power" (pp. 476, 515).

WEEKLY BULLETIN

FIRE PREVENTION

By Chief A. P. Chesney

It often happens that sparks from defective chimneys escape into attics, causing fires that get well underway before being discovered. Such an instance occurred not long ago and was cited in the National Board of Fire Underwriters. When the owner of the premises went upstairs he discovered that the rear of his house, under the roof, was in flames and despite his efforts, aided by his neighbors who came to help him the entire house was consumed, with an uninsured loss of $16,000.

Where a chimney passes through a floor, the space between it and the floor timbers should be at least two inches and should be filled with some porous, incombustible material, such as loose cinders, or used plaster or mortar, held in place by a sheet of metal nailed to the underside of the wooden beams.

Proper filling of this void has two important effects; in the first place it prevents the passage of fire through partitions or furring to upper floors, in the second place it renders impossible the building of nests in this space by rats or mice. Such nests have often been ignited by chimney heat and started fires which were difficult to fight.

Jiffy Knit Sweater With Matching Hat

PATTERN No. 5512

Any four-to-eight-year-old will be warm as toast in this sweater and cap set. The sweater's a "jiffy" knit—just plain knitting combined with yoke and sleeves of easy lacy stitch, and finished almost before you know it. The cap done in a straight strip, gathered at the top, also includes these two stitches, adding a pert pompon for good measure. Choose a colorful yarn, and there'll be no "insisting" she wear it!

In pattern 5512 you will find complete instructions for making the set shown in sizes 4, 6 and 8 (all given in one pattern); an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements.

Send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y.

Throw Me a Cable, Captain, and I'll Give You a Tow!

A man in search of a quiet holiday set out in a small sailing boat, his only equipment consisting of provisions and a wireless set. He sailed serenely for several days, until at last he sighted one of those liners which resemble small towns rather than ships, says the London Observer. The appearance of the little boat created excitement on board the liner, which slowed down.

The captain was wondering whether it was a matter of going to the rescue when the holiday maker moved to his transmitter and tapped out the message: "Is there anything I can do for you?"

Toys Are the Realities of World in Which Child Lives

Toys are to the child what work and tools and recreation are to adults. To a large degree, appropriate toys for the various age levels depend on the individual child; the toy should be just a little more advanced than the child's present stage of development, says Billie Teel Mettel in Hygeia.

The preschool child should be given playthings of an order not so plentiful in school, that will give him contact with nature, instruct him in simple handwork and exercise the large fundamental muscles. Imitative play becomes important at this time, and the laundry set, drawing paper and wooden garden tools are welcome and appropriate toy gifts.

OF COURSE, you know that children should never drink coffee. But do you realize that the caffein in coffee disagrees with many grown-ups, too?

If you are bothered by headaches or indigestion, or find it difficult to sleep soundly . . . caffein may be to blame.

Isn't it worth while to try Postum for 30 days? Postum contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. It is easy to make, and costs less than one-half cent a cup. It's a delicious drink, too . . . and may prove a real help. A product of General Foods.

CALIFORNIA'S OWN LUTHER BURBANK

(By Maude Larue Ives)

In March, the seed planting month, from out the "Land of the Future" came Luther Burbank. That was eighty-seven years ago, and although this great American horticulturist left us some ten years ago, his achievements are here forever a blessing, even though we may forget just how it all happened.

In the little town of Lancaster, Massachusetts, where he was "born and raised," he learned his first lessons in natural history. From early childhood, he was happiest when studying birds, trees and flowers. His schooling was limited to the town academy, and while still of school boy age he worked in a factory in Worcester. Later he found his true vocation when he became a raiser of seeds and a market gardener.

He first experimented on the potato, producing the improved Burbank from which so many hundreds of bushels have since been raised.

The warmer clime of California furnished a more favorable field for his labors and in 1875 he journeyed westward, settling about fifty miles north of San Francisco. After a disheartening struggle he saved enough to buy a small tract of land, upon which he started a nursery of his own. In a few years he became the owner of a business, which netted him $10,000 a year.

Material prosperity was only secondary in his thoughts, however, during the busy years of his life, so he sold his nursery and began his career of experimentation. He lived at Santa Rosa in a beautiful home with rare trees, flowers and shrubs all about.

Some of his flower creations are new varieties of lilies, roses, petunias, dahlias, poppies and his great Shasta daisy named for the snow capped peak of the Sierras he loved so well.

Some of his fruit creations are the Primus berry, the offspring of the California dewberry and Siberian raspberry and the "first known recorded fixed species directly created by man;" the Phenomenal berry, the white blackberry, a berry of snow white color; the plumcot, a cross between a Japanese plum and an apricot and the pomato.

He also produced a plum which tastes like a Bartlett pear. However, of all the Burbank ideas, the spineless cactus alone in its usefulness to man would elevate its originator high on the ladder of fame.

This cactus is a valuable food for both man and animals. This giant grows from eight to sixteen feet in height. Its fruit is the shape of a short thick cucumber, with flat ends. The colors, of the fruit are crimson, orange, yellow, purple and white and its flowers are numerous. It is edible raw or made into jams, jellies and syrups. The slabs or stems of the cactus plant are excellent food for stock, containing about one half the nutritives value of alfalfa. The joints of the plants make delicious pickles. A cactus leaf ten inches across will somtimes produce thirty to forty full-sized cactus pears.

Two centuries ago Jonathan Swift wrote the following lines which are appropriate in paying tribute to this great American.

"And he gave it as his opinion that whoever could make two ears of corn, or two blades of grass, to grow upon a spot where only one grew before would deserve better of mankind, and do more essential service to his country than the whole race of politicians put together."

OLAND TRAPS KILLER FIEND IN GRUESOME TALE

Murder Connected With Spiritual Seance In Attempt To Solve Death

When a man believed long dead turns up in his family home only to be struck down by an assailant's knife, Warner Oland is called in to solve the mystery.

How he tracks down the killer through a fascinating maze of clues and at the risk of his own life is revealed in the Fox thriller, "Charlie Chan's Secret," coming to the Daly City Theater, Sunday and Monday, March 8 and 9.

San Francisco is the scene of Chan's activity in the new picture. Hurrying from Honolulu, where he had expected to find the body of an heir to a large fortune in a shipwreck, he arrives to join the family of the man in a spiritual seance.

In the middle of the seance the body of the man is suddenly and terrifyingly thrust through a trap door. Clues point to the spiritualist, to the family lawyer, to the victim's own family.

Further attempts are made on the life of Chan and on the victim's aunt. The spiritualists flee after having trapped Chan. When they are recaptured, Chan decides to re-enact the seance of the prevous day.

It is here in a gripping, tense and breathless climax that Chan pits his wits and courage against those of the killer, and finds a satisfying solution to the crime.

Directed by Gordon Wiles, this new and fascinating Chan mystery features an all-star supporting cast. Charles Quigley, Rosina Lawrence, Henrietta Crosman, Edward Trevor, Astrid Allwyn and Herbert Mundin are among the players in important roles. Darryl F. Zanuck was in charge of production on "Charlie Chan's Secret."

OWNER OF GOOD HORSE TOP ROW GIVEN HONORS

Spring Session Of Racing To Open At Tanforan Track Tomorrow

Preceded by a dinner at the San Francisco Press Club tonight for A. A. Baroni, owner of Top Row, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, Tanforan will open its spring meeting at San Bruno tomorrow (Saturday) for 25 days, under the guidance of John W. Marchbank, directing owner.

The Baroni dinner tonight will be in the nature of a welcome to the widely-known stable owner and his prize stepper, Top Row, now at Tanforan to compete in the Spring session, where fans will have an opportunity to see what the horse, that won the widely-disputed Santa Anita race, really can do. With Top Row will come two other outstanding horses of Santa Anita fame, Azucar, winner of the first $100,000 purse at the southern track, and Whopper, winner of the Santa Anita closing event, and close bidder for the richer purse a week before.

Starting tomorrow with the Inaugural Handicap at $2000, the stake races this year run all the way to $10,000 for the Marchbank Handicap for three-year-olds and upward on the closing day, April 11. The San Francisco Handicap on Saturday, March 11 will be worth $5000 to the winner.

Weapons used by Emperor Haile Salassie's warriors are on display at the San Diego world's fair.

YOUNG RESIDENT CALLED BY DEATH

The angel of death entered the home of Thomas Fleming, 28 of Risel street and ended his suffering, at an early hour on Monday morning of this week.

Fleming had been ill for several months past. He was the devoted husband of Martha Fleming. Other relatives who survive are his parents, Bradshaw and Mary Fleming; his four sisters and brothers, Mrs. John Graham and Margaret, James N. and John A. Fleming.

Deceased was a member of the Petaluma Presbyterian Church and Petaluma No. 597, L. O. L.

The funeral services were conducted from a San Francisco mortuary establishment, Wednesday of this week, at 12:30 o'clock. Interment took place in the family plot in Petaluma.

Young Fleming leaves a host of friends in Daly City and Petaluma to mourn his untimely passing. He came, with his bride, several years ago to make his home in this city.
